much of the advice to fit a corporate versus a military context. Well worth reading.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Admirable job of compiling Patton's thoughtsBy R NibeyroThis book is an admirable job of compiling Patton's thoughts on leadership and the manner to apply it to real life business. Whatever is your interest in Military affairs or leadership or management and whatever your point of view, this book is absolutely well reading and will help you to deal with the current business management. Patton was an outstanding General of US Army (probably one of the best skilled at the WWII) a warrior and also professional soldier who spent his life inspiring people to accomplish what it the seemingly impossible. Some pictures of the General help you to visualize one of the great military leader. The author gathered and grouped the most important of Patton's maxims and provided clear explanations of their applicability to today's managers or Officers of the Armed Forces, which will no doubt prove useful to anyone willing to try them. With his pragmatic point of view stated that "wars are waged by weapons but they are won by men" or "moral courage is the most valuable and most absent characteristic in men".0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Egotistical General Patton got a lot of things right.By Robert the smart buyerEach page a Patton quote, each page an explanation of what Patton meant by that.

This collection of George S. Patton's pithy one-liners shows how business managers can succeed by applying the combat-tested principles of one of America's most famous battlefield leaders. Also featured are the works of W. Edwards Deming and Walter A. Shewhart, two pioneers in quality control who have influenced management practice for over 50 years.

About the AuthorCharles Province grew up in a small mining town and on his grandpa's farm in southeast Missouri. Following high school, he joined the U.S. Army and learned to wire and operate the ancient IBM punch-card machines—the precursors to today's computers. Province spent many years working for computer manufacturing companies such as DEC, CDC, IBM, and Apple. He worked as a computer liaison and desktop computer specialist for the San Diego Union-Tribune newspaper for forty years and was a computer science instructor in the San Diego Community College District. Subject matters of his books include General George S. Patton Jr., the Korean War, World War II, military history, computer science, and autobiographies. He is also an accomplished actor, author of stage plays, singer, and all-round entertainer. He owns a small publishing house that helps people publish family histories.
