Gilberto Rivera Santiago : Puerto Rican Bloodshed On The 38th Parallel: U.S. Army Against Puerto Ricans Inside The Korean War before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Puerto Rican Bloodshed On The 38th Parallel: U.S. Army Against Puerto Ricans Inside The Korean War:

On 27 August 1950, the 65th Infantry, with 3,920 officers and men organized into three infantry battalions, one artillery battalion and a tank company departed from Puerto Rico and arrived in Pusan, Korea on 23 September 1950. Here are some interviews of Korean War Veterans from the 65th Infantry Regiment who had survived from 'The Cold War', as they recall it as well as 'The Forgotten War'.

About the Author Gilberto Rivera was born September 21 of 1972, in Corozal, Puerto Rico, U.S.A. He wrote many books in devotion for Puerto Rico in all its aspects: Its Culture, Folklore, Nature (Landscape Photography) and History, including The 65th Infantry Regiment, made mostly by Puerto Rican soldiers from the U.S. Army (more focused in their duty during The Korean War). He also wrote poems recalling Puerto Rico's Taino Roots: The Native Indian of Borinquen, since Puerto Rican people (including himself) feel more identified with the term "Boricuas" rather than just "Puerto Ricans". All his books goes In The Name of The Island of Enchantment, Borinquen (Puerto Rico).
