Leroy F. Banning : Regimental History of the 35th Alabama Infantry, 1862-1865 before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Regimental History of the 35th Alabama Infantry, 1862-1865:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Good book By Zack Don't like the "fabricated diary" style but the info seems to be valid so it's a good source for folks wanting to know more about the 35th. I recommend it if you seek information. 5 of 5 people found the following review helpful. Good High level History By K. Scott Sandefur This is a good book that pools together a lot of the information available on this unit and gives some nice narrative entries from some of the officers. It does not contain much detail regarding the individuals that served in the enlisted ranks (probably because very little exists in the public domain). One handy reference is the Mustering rolls. Many of these are available on-line but this seems to contain more detail than I have seen elsewhere. Good reference on the unit as a whole. Details on individual enlisted men are hit or miss. Good for what it is but would have been nice to have more detail about the soldiers.

This book, written in diary format, follows this Confederate Civil War unit from its creation around a nucleus of the cadets from the LaGrange Military Academy in LaGrange, Alabama, on March 1, 1862, to its surrender at Greensboro, North Carolina, on May
