Strategy will have these book on their shelves. For a Military Professionalin either the Navy or Airforce, this book contains the more important early modern stategic theories in theiroriginal form, in the words of the author.Would be suitable for the student or hard core history buff. It is reasonably priced and in paperback.This work will be a bit much for the casual reader, wherein the reader could find the key consepts extractedand explained on the internet.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. worth every pennyBy mark mastersonfour books for the price of one, a must for any military library0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Very convenientBy N. CrainI am very happy with having Mahan, Corbett, Douhet, and Mitchell all in one volume...the best of early naval and air power theory.

Selections from four legends in maritime and air strategy: Mahan, Corbett, Douhet and Mitchell Introduction by noted military strategist and author David Jablonsky David Jablonsky has compiled the best writings of four of the most influential theorists of naval and air power in the past century. Alfred Thayer Mahan's Influence of Sea Power Upon History, Julian Corbett's Some Principles of Maritime Strategy, Guilio Douhet's Command of the Air, and William "Billy" Mitchell's Winged Defense continue to have relevance for students and practitioners of naval and air strategy. They illustrate the continuity of strategic thought, even through current times of great and widespread change.

About the AuthorCol. (Ret.) David Jablonsky, Ph.D. is the Professor of National Security Affairs in the Department of National Security and Strategy at the U.S. Army War College, Carlisle, Pennsylvania.
