There are so many important things left out of history--people, places and events that have helped shape the world, as we know it. The most important subject we can study is history because it gives us years and years of real information that can inform our future. Since 2014 we have released short stories about black history. We are now making those stories available in ebook and in paperback form. Please take a look at these informative stories and read the first chapter here, for free.
