Outstanding reference and resource about the Civil War Flags of Arkansas By Joe Owen This is another outstanding book in the series of Confederate Flags flown during the Civil War. Glenn Dedmond's book of "The Flags of Civil War Arkansas" is a detailed and interesting resource about the history of Arkansas Flags flown by the state government, military regiments and brigades, staff and General's flags used during the Civil War. As The Civil War News said about the book it is "Colorful and Illustrated, and contains much information about each flag". This is not a typical dry reading resource book, it is a very interesting book that not only highlights the flags but the regiments that flew them in battle. The Civil War Flags of Arkansas is a MUST HAVE for anyone interested in Civil War History, Arkansas Regiments during the Civil War, and Civil War Flags. HIGHLY RECOMMENDED! 5 of 5 people found the following review helpful. An Exciting Find By J, Carter Watts I was interested in this book for a couple of reasons. One, being an Arkansas Civil War historian and two, I am in the book. Several years ago I was doing research into a Confederate company from my home town and found a description of their flag. Though a series of events I found their flag in Springfield, Illinois where it had been taken after capture during the war. After three years of work through the governor's office here when Bill Clinton was in governor, the flag was returned to Arkansas. It was restored and now resides in the county museum. I had no idea this book existed. I had heard nothing of its writing or publication so I was curious. I bought it not knowing if the flag was in it or not and didn't care. The other flags were just as important. Sure enough, the flag was there and the story of its discovery. That alone is worth the price. It is a wonderful book and well written. I would suggest it to anyone interested in the Civil War in the West. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By Tanya Wonderful history book!

Flags stir the most noble emotions within the human heart. This fascinating book features color illustrations of Arkansas Civil War-era flags, along with brief text about the history of each unit and its flag.

From the Back Cover Praise for Glenn Dedmond's previous books: "A meticulously detailed resource offering very specific information for history and Civil War buffs, The Flags of Civil War North Carolina is a welcome contribution to the growing library of Civil War studies and could very well serve as a template for similar volumes."--The Midwest Book "A good effort that serves to explain the flags these men fought for."--Blue Gray Magazine "Colorful and well illustrated, and contains much information about each flag."--The Civil War News On May 6, 1861, representatives from Arkansas voted to dissolve their ties with the government in Washington, D.C., feeling that Arkansas belonged with her Southern brothers. Arkansas furnished 65,000 men to serve in defense of the South, nearly its entire male population. The flags in this work are the symbols of the sacrifices and strengths of these men from the Land of Opportunity. Despite the large number of companies outfitted in Arkansas, surprisingly few of their flags survive. As a result of detailed research into archived newspapers and other contemporaneous accounts, the author provides here, for the first time, a nearly exhaustive study of the flags and the men who proudly carried them. From the Bonnie Blue Flag, the unofficial state flag of secession in Arkansas, to the First National flag of the Confederate States and the numerous other company and regimental flags the men of Arkansas bore into battle, each banner is presented in full color, accompanied by a history of its unit and creation. Other books in this series include The Flags of the Confederacy: An Illustrated History, The Flags of the Union: An Illustrated History, Flags of Louisiana, Flags of Tennessee, and Flags of Texas, all published by Pelican. About the Author Glenn Dedmond spent much of his life in the United States Marine Corps. He has served in, among others, Vietnam; Okinawa; Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii; and Parris Island.
