Francis B. C. Bradley : The Kearsarge-Alabama Battle: The Story as Told to the Writer by James Magee of Marblehead, Seaman on the Kearsarge (Classic Reprint) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Kearsarge-Alabama Battle: The Story as Told to the Writer by James

Magee of Marblehead, Seaman on the Kearsarge (Classic Reprint):

Excerpt from The Kearsarge-Alabama Battle: The Story as Told to the Writer by James Magee of Marblehead, Seaman on the Kearsarge
The flag was run up in a ball to mast head, and orders given to one of the men that if we should go down, to pull the halliards and go down colors flying. We did not fire on them after they struck their flag. The boat from the Alabama came alongside, and Lieutenant Wilson delivered up his sword and surrendered the ship, and told the Captain if he did not make haste and get out boats to save life, that there would be a good many go down in the Alabama.
